HOT NEWS

When is the best time to do your homework?

Everyone knows there's homework to do every week! People do it at different times. Here are some of them – the next day, in the evening or at the weekend. Of course, you may need a little help from parents so you'll have to check when they are free. When we interviewed Oak Class, most of them liked to do it after school when their brain was still switched on to learning. Although, some struggled with this because of clubs they attended. The class also agreed, that if you do it straight away, you can enjoy the rest of your weekly free time.

WHAT PETS DO DHS PUPIL'S HAVE?

Newspaper club completed a survey asking each pupil about their pets. We were hoping to find that someone had an unusual one, but no such luck – the most exotic was a lizard called Fizzy.

Key Stage 1

Waves

The splashy sea,
The waves and the splashes,
It makes the people which go wet!

Key Stage 2

Cat

Cute, little furry fluff-ball, curled up tight.

Lovely little fish-eater

Amazing, slow and steady cat, silly and sweet.

Twirling in the shining sun, licking its fluffy, furry paw.

Competition details

Take an animal picture with the help of your parents. Send it to vwhite@dudleyhousechool.co.uk or print it out if you prefer and hand it to Oak Class. The winning picture will be featured in the next edition, displayed in the school art gallery during school next term and you'll get 10 house points for your team!

POETRY DAY

On Thursday 4th October, it was poetry day! All the children wrote and read poems. They got into house teams and played a rhyming game. Oak class did a live lesson. All the school went into the hall to pick a poem of the day. The poem elected was 'Louder' by Roger Stevens. This is what our pupil's opinions were:
"It was fabulous, the Poetry Post as superb!"
"We wrote poems, we brought some home too."
"We wrote a poem about the sea in Birch class."
"Poetry day was wonderful, I loved everyone's poems."

RECIPE

Recipe for Crepes

What you need:

250g Flour Pinch salt
2 eggs ¼ l milk
40g melted butter Sugar or jam

Yum!

Sift the flour and salt into a bowl. Add the eggs, milk and melted butter.

Whisk well, and leave for an hour.

Ask an adult to pour a little of the mixture into a hot, greased frying pan. Cook over a high heat until the underside is golden-brown

Toss or turn the crepe over and cook on the other side. Dust with sugar or spread with jam. Roll and serve.

SCIENCE VISITS

On Thursday 27th September 2018, Birch and Oak class went on a very special event, called Gravity Fields. We woke up ordinarily, but we would have an extraordinary school day!

The moment we arrived at school, Miss White, Oak class's teacher, was standing with a broad, bright smile. What was she about to say?

Miss White gave a casual explanation of safety and what we were doing, but every pupil felt somewhat excited and satisfied. We set off on a walk; Mrs Johnson took us to a box, an anti-gravity box. Who knows what kind of bewildered looks reached the pupil's faces. We stared inside a weird, peculiar box that fits three people. When the first three went, we understood everything...

It was a box with a wonky door and ceiling.

After everyone went, we set off to the old, ancient, St Wulfram's church. It had statues that seemed to stare at us, and a golden cross at the very top. As we stepped into the church, everyone stood still, busy starrng upwards in awe to see a realistic, silver moon on the ceiling. We also sat on soft cushions that pulled us into the core of it.

We then set off to the George Centre to enter the dome. We looked at a lovely night sky with glowing stars and awesome planets. We then saw the excellence of science and even volunteered in a show. We loved our day and we hope we can have more fun liked this.

On Friday, we went to Woolsthorpe Manor, the birthplace of Sir Isaac Newton, where part of Gravity Fields was taking place. We started our day splitting into two groups. First of all my group went into the Manor. A man told us that Isaac Newton used to draw on walls, and it was like a sketchpad, because the walls were whitened every two months! He also told us Isaac made water clocks, where water drops down and the scale shows how much time elapsed. We learnt about Isaac's eye investigation and investigated making light change directions. After that, we made pictures using flowers and sun sensitive paper. We even made handprints on fabric using the same process. Finally, a funny man, called Dr Ken, did a science show using gyroscopes and showed us the effects of gravity.

On Saturday evening, some of us gathered at King's Walk to push a cart full of flowers we had created to St Peter's Hill. We wore glow in the dark bands and flower garlands to celebrate the life of Joseph Banks. One pupil said, 'It's amazing!' After a while, we walked off with our families to enjoy the rest of the entertainment. This included a tightrope walker, a circus act and the Endeavour sailing up the High Street.

Hazel class says hands up for Sacrewell Farm!

We went on a minibus that was like a van but had windows and a sliding door.

We went into the room where we could eat. We saw a peacock called Daisy, a baby goat that butted and cows.

We built dens with wood and climbed trees. On person got stuck! We went on a tractor ride. It was bumpy and fun!

We saw the water going on a big wheel called a water mill for making flour.

We filled our pockets with conkers – probably about eight.

We learnt about how the mill worked. It was fun!

BOOK REVIEW

The Jam Doughnut That Ruined by life

Book review by OCR

Main Character:

The main character was Roman Garstang. He loved doughnuts.

What happens?

Roman tries to eat a doughnut but a girl named Rosie keeps getting him in trouble because she doesn't like doughnuts.

What happens in the end?

Roman gets a year's supply of lemon curd doughnuts but he doesn't like lemon curd doughnuts.

What's the rating?

The rating is 5 stars because it's super funny!

Mrs Johnson is missing, where is she? Can you find her in this term's edition?
